How Data is Collected - Security Methods in Place for Collection and Storage of Your Information

Data Collected Through Forms on Our Site

All information submitted to our website using our forms is encrypted for transmission using Secure Socket Layer (SSL) protocol and 128-bit encryption. If your Web browser does not currently support this security protocol, you will be prompted to update your security and presented with a link to a site where you may obtain the necessary plug-in at no charge.

E-Mail

Personal information transmitted across the Internet via e-mail is not secure and will not be requested or accepted by Commonwealth Health Corporation. Secure customer service forms are available for all communications.

Storage of and Access to Information

Personal information collected through our site is secured within the Commonwealth Health Corporation data network. The information is subject to applicable access restrictions and protocols that are maintained by our Information Technology department and Corporate Privacy Officer in compliance with applicable state and federal regulations.

How Data is Used

Uniquely identifiable data collected and stored as part of any Commonwealth Health Corporation Web site will not be shared with third parties, without your explicit permission.

Safeguards

During linking from any Commonwealth Health Corporation Web site to any external site not under our control, no data, including URL query strings, will contain identifiable information to allow a third party to ascertain user identification or any other uniquely identifiable user information from our Web site except in cases noted above.

Caution

Users of our Web site who do link to a third-party Web site must be aware that our Privacy Policy does not extend beyond the borders of the Commonwealth Health Corporation Web site.
